Farmers should be made aware of shed nets: District Collector Vijaya Krishnan

Anakapalle, August 07

Ringside View: District Collector Vijaya Krishnan has instructed officials to organize awareness seminars for farmers on shed nets and to organize full-scale awareness seminars for farmers at the mandal level and provide awareness on shed nets and identify 10 interested farmers per mandal and submit the details to the District Rural Development Organization by the 18th of this month. On Thursday, a review was held on shed nets with the Horticulture, Rural Development and Kethi Tech Company at the Collectorate Conference Hall. Speaking on this occasion, the Collector said that the main purpose is to install shade nets for farmers in coordination with the District Rural Development and Horticulture departments. If farmers install these shed nets, pests and diseases will be prevented. Less water will be required. Similarly, the crop yield is high. It is 3 times higher than the normal crop yield. Farmers use modern technology and this shed net is useful to protect the crop from various weather conditions. It protects the crop from harmful rays from the sun. Crops are protected from heat, cold, hail and other weather conditions. Once the shed net is installed, it can be used for up to 10 years. The shed net is 21 meters wide, 25 meters long and 4 meters high in 13 cents. In this, tomatoes, chili, capsicum, watermelons, vegetables, orchards and flower gardens can be grown in it. The unit cost in 13 cents is Rs. 3,22,800. In this, if the farmer invests Rs. 1,61,400/- as his share capital, then Rs. 1,61,400/- comes in the form of subsidy from the Horticulture Department. Women farmers are provided loans through bank linkage, women's fund, Unnati and internal loans from DRDA. This was done by signing an MoU with SERP. Later, as part of P4, every member of the self-help group should adopt their relatives in the Bangaru Kutum and take care of their welfare. The project manager trained the village association assistant on the P4 app at the mandal level on Monday and instructed the project managers to register the P4 app on the same day evening. District Rural Development Officer K Sachi Devi, District Horticulture Officer M A Rahim, District Bindu Sedyam Padhak Sanchalaki G V Lakshmi, APMs of all mandals, Horticulture Officers and others participated in this meeting.
